Theme for Comment in the Press.

LONDON, Sept. 17.-Much ill-feeling existed between the returned dock laborers and the men who took the places of the strikers, and the former refused to work with them. Several encounters occurred between them. Many of the dock laborers protested that the leaders of the strike had no right to agree to the The officials of the dock companies made a complaint to the lord mayor against the action of the returned strikers and the lord mayor promised to do his utmost to keep the men to their agreement. Meanwhile the situation was regarded so serious that an urgent meeting of the committee of the dock companies, the conciliation committee

No Love for the "Blacklegs."

The dissatisfaction over the retention of the "blacklegs" or "rats" by the dock companies is not thought likely to have any serious consequences. The directors of the companies have no special love for the men who took the strikers' places, especially as they were not sufficiently numerous to enable the managers to win the day. The companies, however, are obliged to make a show of protecting these men, and could hardly be expected to throw them out on the first day that work was begun under the new agreement. It is understood that at the conference of the mediators a tacit understanding was arrived at by which the "blacklegs" will soon find their occupations gove, without any special reason being given therefor. Work will be scarce for them, though plenty for the old men, and they will gradually be dropped from the pay rolls. On the other hand, the strike leaders agree to do all they can to prevent the regular men from assaulting or in any way interfering with the new men, so long as the retention of the latter is deemed absolutely necessary. This is not likely to be very long, as the "blacklegs" are mostly so frightened by the threats of the regulars that many of them are already clamoring to be sent back to cities whence they

The Fortunate Termination of the Strike continues to be a leading theme for comment in the press, and the lesson drawn from recent events seems to be, in the great majority of cases, that a vast change has been wrought in public opinion during the past few years in regard to the proper relations of society to the individual. Some time ago the doctrine of Laissez Faire had full swing, in the sense of letting all institutions concerning property alone, no matter how much suffering might be caused by their opera-tions. At the same time society was forced to bear the burden of at least partial alleviation of this suffering through the poor laws. Curiously enough, as pointed out by a leading journal yesterday. Cardinal Manning was one of the first to point out the absurdity of this attitude and to suggest that it might be a better policy for society to shift some of this burden upon classes of property which had specially benefitted by certain changes made in the social and industrial system a century or two ago. The idea has grown in the popular mind, and the recent strike finally gave the cardinal an opportunity of proposing an entering wedge toward its realization. This is shown by the general talk now prevalent in favor of the government taking over the dock property in case there is any more trouble between the companies and the men. The fear of such a consumutation undoubtedly had much to do with the comparative good grace with which the companies con-

Earnings of the Union Pacific. Boston, Sept. 18.—The Union Pacific Railroad company's report shows gross earnings for July of $3,471,072; expenses. $1,965,311; net earnings, $1,505,761 This is an increase in net earnings of $206,382 over the same month of last year, a decrease of $66,912 in expenses and an increase of $273,324 in net carnings. The statement for seven mouths ending July 31 shows gross earnings of $20,012,131; expenses, $12,996,144; net carnings, $7,016,287. This is a decrease from last year of $691,369 in gross earnings, $390,192 in expenses and $301,177 in net carnings.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The steamer Vertumnus, with fruit. Jamaica for this city, went ashore on Long Beach. All on board were saved. Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon and their two children, passengers on the vessel, were being taken off in a boat, when it capsized in the surf, but they were rescued by summer boarders at the beach, who plunged in and brought them ashore. Mrs. Henry Chapmane, of Brooklyn, distinguished herself by saving a 3-year-old child in this way. The vessel will probably be a total loss.

WOODRUFF ADMITS THAT HE PER-JURED HIMSELF IN THE IVES CASE.

Afterwards Asked to Resign-His Memory Very Deficient on Important Points-Denies That He Was Prom-Isod His Freedom if He Made Certain Statements.

New York, Sept. 18.—Mr. Woodruff continued his testimony in the Ives case. He stated that he became acquainted with Ives in a casual way and subsequently entered his employment. The business of the firm consisted of the buying and selling of stocks and bonds. In the spring of 1831 one day Ives surprised Woodruff by taking him by the lapel of his coat and blandly informing him that he was a partner, to receive 15 per cent. of the profits. He said he was ordered to become a partner. He had to comply or leave Ives' employ. The name of the firm remained the same, Henry S. Ives & Co. Witness stated his duties were to obey Ives, and that he never did anything of importance without instructions from his employer. In December, 1886, the witness was requested to resign from the firm. This was at the time that Doremus and Stayner appeared on the scene, and as it appeared Woodruff was distasteful to Stayner. Ives then made Woodruff his confidential clerk with a salary. When Lawyer Brook endeavored to touch the witness upon the subject of the Cincinnati trip for the purpose of gobbling up the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad, Woodruff's memory completely Witness then described the apartments of the combine at the St. Nicholas hotel in Cincinnati, stating that he had free access to all the rooms. He was present at the meeting of directors.

Witness Prevarientes. Witness then prevarieated somewhat as to the journey from Cincinnati to Stayner's house in Brooklyn with the books and seals of the company, and was severely rebuked by the lawyers for his apparent shortness of memory. Then ensued a repetition of the story Woodruff told about what transpired at Stayner's house. On being asked what became of the certificates after all the signing had been completed by Ives and Stayner, Woodruff replied: "I believe they remained on the table, but I don't fully remember." Then for about fifteen minutes after the above testimony Woodruff did not know anything. He did not know when he left the house or how he got to Newark or when he arrived in Cincinnati, and above all he did not know how the lawyers should be allowed to bore him at all.

Willful Perjury Admitted. Attorney Brook unsucce-stully endeavored to induce Woodruff to admit that he was very drunk on the day that Ives & Co. assigned. The witness, persistently denied this and said that he had never been drunk. On the day of the assignment he had taken the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton transfer book home, where he kept it until tour or five days after his arrest, when he turned it over to Assistant District Attorney Parker. He stoutly denied that he had been promised his freedom if he made certain statements. Lawyer Brook then read Woodruff's testimony, taken in Cincinnati, in the suit of Netter against Meyer, Ives and Staynor. Reterring to certain portions of that evidence Mr. Brook asked the witness if he had made the statements contained therein. Witness answered: "I did." "And when you made those statements," continued Mr. Brook, "you knew you were committing wilful per-

"I did," again replied the witness. The spectators in the court room were astonished at the cool effrontery of the witness, but the latter remained unmoved while admitting the falsity of his testimony in the Cincinnati case.

Denial from the District Attorney. Lawyer Brook continued to cross-examine the witness concerning his sworn statements in previous trials, and Woodruff cooly admitted that many of these statements were false. Mr. Brook then stated to the jury that Woodruff had been assured of immunity provided he would turn state's evidence. The district attorney promptly pronounced this statement as false in every particular. In order to show that Woodruff was not in such mortal dread of Ives as he pretended to be, a letter from Woodruff to Ives was read, in which the former had declined to meet Ives to talk matters over niter the first arrest of Ives.

Woodruff also admitted that upon instruction he (Woodrug) had just before Ives' arrest assured Ives' lawyers, "upon his honor as a gentle-"that there had been nothing wrong in any of Ives' transactions. This had been done because Ives wished to deceive his own lawyers. The cross-examination of the witness then closed. Continues to Perjace Hunself.

Assistant District Attorney Parker then questioned Woodruff concerning his statement that his Cincinnati atlidavit was false. Witness said the Cincinnati evidence had been dictated by Mr. Ives and was entirely false. Referring to the torgery of Meyer's mituals by Ives, witness said Ives had committed this forgery and had promised that anything to be made out of it would be divided between Netter, Stayner, Woodruff and himself. Witness said that although he had acted as secretary of the railroad company, he had rever read the histaws of the consessy. A moment often making this statement he admitted that it was false. He continued to perjure himself in this way for some time to the lifter astom liment of the court and incy. In reply to a quesfrom by on set the "jarors Woodruff said he was a member of the birst Dutch Reformed church of Newark, N. J., and had been so for fourteen years.

Robert B. Smith, assistant cashier, and Theodore M. Nevins, cashier of the firm of Ives & Co., then testified as to the methods of that firm. Nevins stated that Ives had instructed him to credit the (incinual), Hamilton and Dayton road with 4,500 shares of stock, although no money for the same had been received

CITIZENS OF COLUMBUS EXTEND A WARM WELCOME TO ODD FELLOWS.

The Hall of the House of Representatives Brilliant With Decorations-Officers of the Sovereign Grand Lodge Down to Business-Report of the Grand Sire Shows a Flattering Increase in Lodges and Membership.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 17.—The hall of the house of representatives presents a brilliant scene with its decorations of all colors of the rainbow prepared for America's great event in Odd Fellowship. Pendant from the large chandelier at the center of the ceiling are huge bars of red, white and blue, which stretch to the four corners of the hall, fastening to the railings of the galleries. On every wall are huge flags, disks, stars and emblems of the order, all in the national colors. The galleries which span the north and south sides of the hall are scenes of splendor. Against the walls and forming the background of these parts of the auditorium are decorations of most artistic design, while pendant from the gallery railings are drooping folds of red, white and blue bunting bedecked with flags of every state in the Union. Additions have been built to the speakers rostrum and above it is placed a huge red, white and blue star, on which stand out in bold relief from a dark background the letters "I. O. O. F." in gold foil.

No less than 8,000 of this order have arrived and the trains are coming in on every road loaded down with Odd Fellows, and by to-night 60,000 visitors will be here. The city is one vast sea of decorations and the scene in beauty re-case Woodruff testified that Ives had told him that as the company itself controlled a majority of the stock the officers of the company had everything . in their own hands, and that no trouble could come to them through the overissue of the stock. Subsequently Ives had handed to witness 2,300 "new shares for the purpose of canceling old stock. Two thousand shares of this lot of new stock were not recorded because there was not sufficient old stock for cancellation. Ives had erased the signature of Mr. Zimmerman from some of the certificates in order to deceive Mr. Burns, who was the register of the American Exchange National bank, while the stock was registered according to custom. Ives had said to witness: "We must not let Burns get on to this or we'll get up a tree." As fast as the bogus certificates were finished they were hurried over to Mr. Burns, who was waiting for them. This scheme seemed to quiet the suspicions of the bank officers, which had been aroused.

Witness had acted as secretary of a meeting of the stockholders, held Feb. 25, 1887, at which the directors were authorized to purchase the balance of outstanding stock-1,496 shares-at 130. Witness further testified that only four shares of the unauthorized stock remained out to date and that those four had been burned by Ives' direction.

The balance of the session was taken up in the examination and identification of books bearing upon the case. The trial will be resumed.

BOB YOUNGER DEAD.

With His Last Breath He Bade His Brothers and Sisters "Good-Bye."

STILLWATER, Minn., Sept. 17.—Bob Younger, the Missouri outlaw, died of consumption at 10:20 last evening, at the age of 34 years, after an imprisonment of thirteen years. Death at last came suddenly and hardly expected under two or three weeks. He began to teel the end approach at 6 o'clock and told Jim and Cole, his brothers, also serving life sentences, to remain, as he had but two or three hours to live. He sank gradually and kept his mental faculties up to the last breath and bade his brothers and sister "good-bye." His remains will probably be taken to his native county of Jackson, Mo., for interment. All the Youngers claimed that Bob never participated in any lawless act or excursion except the Northfield affair.

Beath Due to Negligence.

Washington, Sept. 17.—The coroner's jucy, investigating the causes which ledto the collision near the navy yard tunnel on the Baltimore and Potomac road last Friday nught, and which resulted in the death of Lagineer Jamison, found a verdict yesterday to the effect that the collision and Jami on's death were due to the negligence of F. B. Kramer, the telegraph operator. Kramer, it seems from the evidence taken, received an order to hold all northbound trains, but southbound express train, which, owing for the action of the grand jury.

Inquiry Into Lunacy Declared Off.

Washington, Sept. 17.—The proposed inquiry into the sanity of Maj. Armes, recently court martialed for pulling Governor Beaver's nose, which was to have begun to-day before a board of medical officers, has been abandoned Late yesterday afternoon Gen. Schoneld, acting secretary of war, issued an order suspending the original order for the examination. No reasons were given for this action. Maj. Armes was fully prepared for the ordeal and had invited a physician and some friends to be present. at the inquiry. He went to his home, a few miles out in the country, in the afternoon before the order was issued. Notice of the suspension of the order was sent to him.

A Beautiful Girl Spicides. Bullows Falls, Vt., Sept. 17.—Della Walker, aged 49 years, committed suicide by drowning at Langdon, N. H., last Friday night. She was a beautiful and accomplished girl. The cause of her suicide is a mystery. She was an intimate friend of Miss Skinner, of Keene, and Miss Walker, of Springfield, Vt. both of whom committed suicide last winter. All three attended the Vermont academy together. A Costly Nuisance.

PHILADULPRIA, Sept. 17.-Isaac A Sweigard, general superintendent of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad company, was sentenced by Judge Finletter. to pay a fine of $1,000 and to undergo an imprisonment of six months for maintaining a muisance in erecting a fence along the line of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad company, of which he was convicted last May.

TANNER'S SUCCESSOR.

MAJ. WARNER, IT IS BELIEVED, HAS

Bussey Severely Criticised by Tanner's

Washington, Sept. 14.—The arrival in this city of Maj. Warner, of Missouri, past commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, in response to a request from Secretary Noble, is generally believed to mean his appointment to the position of commissioner of pensions. Other prominent G. A. R. men are mentioned for the position, among them Past Commander Fairchild and Rea, but Warner stock seems to be above all others. Maj. Warner had a long conference with Secretary Noble at the interior department, presumably about the position that most people think has been offered to him, but which some think he will not accept unless at a great sacrifice of business income and prospects.

An intimate friend of the president said last night that Maj. Warner had been tendered the position, but that the president had no positive information that it would be accepted and that there were some doubts whether Maj. Warner would accept, as it would necessitate his abandoning the lucrative position he now holds as solicitor for the Missouri Pacific railway worth $10,000 to $15,000 a year for the commissionership worth a salary of but $5,000. Congressman Wade, of Missouri, who was associated with the major during his terms in congress, said last night that he had no doubt Maj. Warner would accept the position. Representative Lamb's Opinion.

Representative Lamb, of Indiana, arrived in the city yesterday. In a conversation with a reporter of the United Press he said: "I have not seen Maj. Warner since he arrived in Washington, but from what I hear I have no doubt he will be made commissioner of pensions. It will be a very good appointment. There is sure to be a great deal of disappointment among old soldiers about Tanner's resignation. There is not one of them but has an idea that Tanner would at some time or other give him the surplus, and it will be impossible to convince them that Tanner was not removed because of his liberality. The mismanagement of the pension office under Commissioner Tanner has been such that I have been kept at my home all summer attending to a correspondence, the mincipal part of which related to pension cases. It has been almost impossible to get any answers to letters addressed to the pension office and claimants have been calling on us to have their business attended to. Secretary Bussey Criticised.

Assistant Secretary Bussey, who has as the primary source of all of Mr. Tanner's troucle, and who it has been reported is likely to be removed through A. R. influence, is apparently but little disturbed over the situation growing out of Mr. Tanner's retirement. He insists that in running counter to some of the official acts of the commissioner he has been actuated by no feeling of personal ill-will toward. Mr. Tanner and feels confident that industrial G. bia Reply to Mayor Grant's Letter. Washington, Sept. 14. -- The commisdoners of the District of Columbia received a communication from Mayor Grant, of New York City, which, to say the least, was a surprise to ttom. It was nothing more nor less than a letter from Mayor Grant, addressed, so pularly enough, to "His Honor the M por of Washington," requesting his air and cooperation and that of the city authorities, commercial bodies and citatens to insure the holding of the unteractional exposition in 1892 in New York City. There being no such functionary as mayor in existence here the lett a naturally fell into the hunds of the district commis ioners, who returned the tellow-

ing response:

In reply we beg leave to say that we believe it to be the almost universal desire of the people of the Unit I States that the proposed exposition, by hig of an international character, should be held at the capital city of the nat so, which has many manifest advantages for such a purposs. As our citizens and local insure the location of this expect on in Washington and as the encloses have our carnest sympathy and support, we are not at liberty to comply with your

Should the exposition be held in the city of New York it will give the authorities and citizens of Washington pleasure to do all in their power to aid in making it worthy of the United States and the industrial progress of the world.

Washington, Sept. 11. - While walking through the Capitol the other day I saw fusiv a gozen maimed ex-soldiers engage in performance of their duties as wat do at and laborers in the huge building on that day the papers were filled with discussions of the Milwankee Grand Arian encampment, of Senator Mander son's pension, of pensions in gen-

It remains with us an issue, an epoch, the sour, and subject of much of our national sustiment. But how could it be otherwise when so many men who participated in it still live to talk of the nost storing scenes of their existence? Why, the other day I was in the office of The Nat. and Tribune, the soldiers' paper, and the scor told me he printed every week a seation of 155,000 copies, and in his office, the names and address - a 800,000 survivors of the war who to dust on the Federal side. figures. It proved a very interesting inquiry, too.

I was surprised to learn that notwithstanding almost a quarter of a century had elapsed since the close of the civil war, there were in the last congress no fewer than 169 men who had served in They are in All Positions from the senate one capacity or another in that war, or and House of Representatives Down to more than two-fifths of the whole number of members. These congressional honors being as a rule such as are won by genius, ability, perseverance and strength of character, and not given out of the gratitude of the people, it follows that the presence in the national legislature of such an extraordinary number of survivors of a war that closed twentyfive years ago must be explainable only on some broad grounds of human nature and conditions of society. It seems to me the explanation is that the young men of ambition, of courage, of lively spirit and strong bodies, were the men that largely made up the rolls of the armies. Their military experience was of immense advantage to them, adding to their courage and self confidence, broadening their views and giving them greater strength for the race of life. If they went into the army through patrictism, they came out of it fired by ambition. By services in the field, too, they had won titles—general, colonel, major, captain—and these gave them prestige at home. The men who went to the war were the virile, pushing, indomitable men of the country: the boys who staid at home adding to their store of wealth and learning while their brothers were neglecting private fortune in their country's service still found themselves outdone and overmatched as soon as the latter returned to the activities and rivalries of peace.

In looking at these now upturned and newly varnished desks occupied by statesmen in their season, we are κ minded most strikingly of the fact that there was a Confederate army. Surprising as is the statement that of 401 national legislators 169 fought in the war between the states, it does not excite our amazement hearly so much as does this fact, that of the 169 surviving warriors almost one-half hail from the

Of 242 sepators and representatives from the twenty states of the north in the last congress 78 were in the Union army or navy.

Of 95 schators and representatives from the ten states of the south which joined openly in rebellion, 69 were in the Confederate army or navv.

Of 58 senators and representatives from the six border states of Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri, 13 were in the Confederate army and 3 in the Federal.

Of 6 senators and representatives from the two states, Colorado and Nebraska. admitted to the Union after the close of the war 3 were in the Federal army. Total in Union arany. 87

In other words, the war comes to an end; nearly a quarter of a century passes, and we then find one national legislator out of three from the north a survivor of that conflict.

But from the former Confederate States three legislators out of four bore arms in behalf of the cause that was lost at Appointation.

And if the philosophers are fond of explaining the activities and successes of human classes. Let them tell us why, with but a million war survivors of a total population of $1,000,000, two-fifths of the members of congress were once weavers of the blue or the grav?

One thing which the philosophers will tell us is that there never was in the history of the world a war in which so many young men hore arms as in the rebellion. The smooth facea boys who shouldered a musket and marched to the front are the statesmen of today.

That this is literally true one may see by glancing at the records. Look anywhere in the pages of biography and you will find the boys at the front, in the days of war and in these piping times of peace. Concressman McKinley, of Olno, was a stripling of 17 when he enlisted as a private. He was mustered out a brevet major. Representative Boothman, of the same state, was but a year older when he shouldered his musket. Thompson, of Ohio, was the same age as was Modifit, of New York; Clark, of Wisconsin; Peters, of Kansas; Goff, of , West Virginia; Nelson, of Minnesota, and others. Fromas, of Illinois, went in at 15: Strube, or lown, at 17: Conger and Holmes, of the same chite, at 19, Laird, of Normsky, now need was one of the youngest soldiers in the war. He put on the thie when he was a hel of 13.

Nearly one-half of the southern soldier state-men calisted as mere boys. Catchings and Allen, of Mississippi, were only 14; the two senators from West Virginia, Ketara and Faulkner, were 15; Grimes, of Georgia, and Lanham, of Texas; Senator Riddleberger, of Virkins, 18, as were Wilson, of West Virginia, Rowland and Henderson, of North Carolina, Bankhead, of Alabama, Lub-Mississippi. The stress of battle was so great in the south that even the boys and WALTER WELLMAN.

HUGH OWEN PENTECOST.

THE FAMOUS PREACHER AND WHERE HE CAME FROM.

He First Studied for the Baptist Ministry, Then He Started an Independent Church-What He Says About His Be-

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.-Among the group that surrounded Henry George when the labor movement became so prominent, several years ago, was a man who, for many reasons, seemed fitted to be a leader among men. His name was Hugh Owen Pentecost, and he holds the same opinions and position with reference to the movement that he did then, The people of today are always thirsting for something new. This may be one of the secrets of Mr. Pentecost's influence. for his ideas and beliefs are certainly

He was born at New Harmony, Ind., in 1848. He describes the town as a seat of Fourierite community, which had been founded by the Owen family, who brought a colony over from England and for whom Mr. Pentecost was named. This colony had many things in common, and its members lived together like one large family. Mr. Pentecost says, "There has always been some socialistic blood in me," attributing the fact to his birthplace. His grandfather established a similar community ten miles away in Illinois, called Albion. Both towns are still in existence. The family resided in New Harmony only until the subject of this sketch was 2 years old, but lived in the neighborhood until he became of age, He was a printer in his youth, and spent seven years at the case.

When 21 years old Mr. Pentecost came east, entered Madison university, Hamilton, N. Y., and studied for the Baptist ministry. His first charge was at Rockville Centre, L. I., in a church partly self supporting and partly under the care of a mission board. There he was married. While at this place he got into trouble with his denomination because he did not believe in close communion, and was obliged to give up his charge. He says: "I was considerably exercised about it. Then I started an independent church in Brooklyn, called 'The Church of the People,' but gave it up after two or three years."

He next became pastor of a liberal Baptist church at Westerly, R. L. where he was received with the distinct understanding that he held liberal denominational views. Dure this pastorate, which lasted several years, his wife died.

Up to this time Mr. Pentecost's charges had been in small places. He now became paster of a large Baptist church at Hartford, Coan., being here also received with the understanling that he was "heterodox on the communion question." His pastorate at Hartford was very successful, between two hundred and daty and three hundred persons uniting with the church through his influence. While in Harrford he

When Mr. Pentecost left Hartford it was to take charge of the Marcy Avenue Baptist church,

Brooklyn, N. Y., where he remained three years. When he left this church he left the denomination also. He their became paster of the Independent Congregational church, New York city. During the three H. O. PLATICOST. years of his pastorate bere he did a good deal of visiting among the poor. To this work he attributes his knowledge of tenement house life on the west side, for he spent much time in such places, where many of his Sunday school children lived. Said he: "That was a profound experience, because up to this time I had been pastor of the average, well-to-do American church." And again: "It threw me for the first time in contact with the lives of the poor, and set me to thinking in economic lines. All through the Brooklyn experience I had been growing more and more liberal, and while stationed at the Independent church I read Henry George's books." In April, 1886, Mr. Pentecost went to the Belleville Avenue Congregational church, of Newark, N. J., to succeed Dr. George II. Hepworth, now on the editorial staff of The New York Herald. His preaching there was successful in point of the numbers who were attracted to hear him. His brilliant manner of speaking and bis engaging social qualities won him friends on all sides. While he was at this church the movement, headed by Henry George, came more prominently before the public, and Dr. McGlynu's coming out of the Catholic church os urred. Of the end of his pastorate here Mr. Pentecost says: "Dr. McGlynn's attitude led me to speak about him. I had then become so thoroughly interested that I brought the subject into the pulpit, and it created much opposition. The culminating point was when the Chicago Anarchi is were hanged. I made a vigorous protest. This was a protest, in the first place, against capital punishment in general, In the second place, it was not a defense of these men, but a statement that the discontent-the social ferment-which they represented, could not be quelled by hanging them, but by removing the causes which led to the discontent. This brought the opposition in the church to a climax, and I presented my resignation."

This event marks the second great change in Mr. Pentecost's beliefs, for when he left his Newark charge he left orthodoxy. He at once established three congregations, one in Newark, one in Brooklyn and one in New York, which he addressed each Sunday.

The Newark congregation meets in a building next door to his old charge. The exercises, which are the same in Ithe three places, begin with instrumental music by an orchestra or a pianist. This is followed by a "hymn," as it is called. It consists of singing to some well known sacred tune poetry selected for the occasion from all sources. It might be added that these tunes constitute the only vestige of anything sacred about the meetings. The following is an exact copy of the programme for a recent Sunday: ORCHESTRA.

HYMN-Tune, "Autumn." There are moments when life's shadows Fall all darkly on the soul.

Hiding stars of hope behind them in a black impervious scroll; When we walk with trembing footsteps, Scarcely knowing how or where The dim puls we trend are leading, In our midnight or despure

Stand we firm in that dread moment, Stand we firm, nor shrink away; Leosing boldly through the darkness, Wait the corning of the day; Gathering strength while we are waiting For the conflict yet to come

Firmly stand though sirens line us, Firmly stand though talsenoor rail, Holding bistice, truth and mercy, the we may but cannot fail; Tad it is the word of cowards, fart the language of the slave. Firmly stand till duty beckons; Onward then, e'en to the grave,

Mr. Pentecost is a busy man during the week, for he is the editor of a weekly paper called Twentieth Century. "deating with religious and economic subjects only," he says. It began its career in March, 1868, as a flar-page octavo tract, containing only the Sunday addresses of the editor, but has grown to a sixt.en-page weekly of good size and neat typographical appearance. Its motto is, "Hear the other side," and the editor says that it is "an absolutely open forum" in which "any one who can write good English can speak his mind on any subject with which it deals,"

Mr. Pentecost says that he is still in sympathy with the Henry George move ment and interested in the labor and socialistic questions. He remarked: "I accept the philosophy of what is called Anarchism." He thinks that the word "anarchy" is a misnomer, and that it should be changed to "freedom."

In personal appearance, Mr. Pentecost is a man of good height and stature, with dark complexion, hair and eyes, and an animated manner. He wears gold bowed eyeglasses. His face is smooth, except for a curling mustache, and his air is that of a man who has seen the world and knows it pretty well. He is a fluent and agreeable talker, and one can readily believe, after seeing him, that he is a social favorite. He does not think that children should be taught to obey their parenes because the latter are mauthority over them, but believes they can be guided to know right from wrong and make their choice. This is the method he has adopted with his own children.

His editorial office is of the regulation type, a carpeted, well lighted and paper bestrewn "den." But his house in Newark is a veritable gem, it is said, furnished with taste and even elegance. Choice pactures and bric-a-brac adorn the rooms, and it is evident that the hand of a true genius of artistic furnishing has been at work. True to his beliefs on the land theory, Mr. Pentecost is not the owner, but the lessee, of his house. Annie I. Willis.

It is stated that one of the Chicago limited trains recently attained a speed of fifty-six miles an hour and maintained it for a long distance. A writer in The Railway Age predicts that the present railroad time of twenty-four hours between Chicago and New York will be reduced to ten hours.

A TRIP TO THE GREAT VOLCANO.

Mrs. L. D. Pinney Tells of Her Expericace Before One of the Wonders of the World-Strange Experiences in a Land of Sunshine and Roses.

MAKAWAO, MALI, HAWAH, Aug 26. A lew friends and myself, seeking recreation and improvement, left Honolulu July 12, en route for the great volcano and other places of interest on the Hawaiian island. In the peaceful harfor the stea ver Kinau with clean, commodions state rooms and quiet, respecttul demeanor gave no indication of its rolling capacity, but her fame for imitatory the motion of the capricious channels and coast waters having reache four ears, we took a recombent position immedia ely, and by the aid of door-knob, siles of the berth, and, flotpressure, managed to evade the starks, who had good reason to anticipate our egress. Trem the reports of gold sailors and the gimpses from my optical corners, the sheres are precipitous and grand, or rocky and arid, dotted here and there with green cane fields, sugarmills and pleasant homes. After speed ing about two days in Neptunes comain and making many firm resolutions never to be under sway of his fright again, unless stern necessity compelled, we and ored at Keanhou, fourteen names from the Velcano House.

Large vessels do not have piers in any cithe ports of these islands except at Horobulu so that all loading and unloading of freight and passengers most bedone in small boats, and at some places this is effected by a soit of Targe basket on the derivek plan. The stops boats were lowered and stordy seamen were soon rowing us toward a cliff upon which we were to step when the crest of the wave brought the skull within suitable distance. As one of the party stood swaying by the swell of the water and the wind, ready and anxious to make the spring, a strugging pig was brought up in the rear, the second in order of debarkation; another of our party had iscctionaness enough left to wish a picture. but our scientific friend was unable to get his kodak into working order quickly. enough. Horses were in readiness for our six miles in the saddle, then, after a refreshing lunch at the half-way house, brakes conveyed us to the hotel, where the luxury of a cheerful fire, warm blankets and invigorating air awaited us, as the elevation was over 4,000 feet. The Volcano House is a large building of one story, with gable roof, in fact, most of the buildings on these islands are built low on account of the earthquakes, which in former times were much more violent than now. Mr. Mally, the proprietor of the Volcano House, is attentive and obliging, an laupplies an abundance of who esome food to which the fresh, pure air gives an uncommon relish. At this height and distance from the great mans of the world, all the dainties and conveniences should not be expected, but what is a little smoke and discomfort in every direction. Seated upon the veranda of the inn, Mauno Loa is before clouds. On its slope is Kilauer, far helow its summit, sending forth flame and material, the agents' vapor. Extensive sulphur banks, from the holes of which issues steam impresnated with the fragrant mineral, are near, enabling one to take hot sulphur baths, which remove the stiffness and weariness of "roughing 11." Bleakness and barrenness might be expected but, on the contrary, the decayed lava has formed a fertile, though thin soil in which flourish a cearse but nutritious grass; the chia tree with clusters of red Hossoms; the ohela bush, bearing a red or yellow edibia berry, similar in form but larger than the huckleberry; and immense ferns of great variety, shading from bright terra cotta into the various green lines. The hotel grounds are adorned with choice roses, beliefrope, carnations, tangles of nasturtums and ferns, and a vegetable garden yields products of good flavor and great size. The steamer, after leaving passengers at the volcano, usually goes back to Ililo for freight, and returns in a day or two for travelers, but, fortunately, three days and four mights were allowed to our party, as there was an uncommon amount of cargo. This delay gave us ample time time to view the great lake of fire, and when rested from the fatigue of the voyage, we set out about 3 o'clock p. m. for a wearisome walk of nearly four miles to this great wonder of the world. Dana lake, named from the great geologist, who visited it a few years since, is on the side of Mauns, Loa, about 10,000. feet from its top and 4,000 feet from its base. In 1858, from another crater on the side of this mountain, there was a tiery flow of molten lava fifteen miles in lengith and two mitles in breadth, finally plunged into the eea. In its center was a swift stream flowing at the rate of fifty miles an hour, and eight years ago, it sent forth a stream from near its top of lava rock, which stopped only a mile from Hilo, thirty miles distant. At present the summit crater is inactive, and, peahaps, time, that great subduer of all things, has partially quelled the force and fire of its youth and confined them to lower, narrower limits. In going to the crater Kilauea, for the first mile, the path descends over 400 feet to the vast lava bed over which no animal except the hiped has, as far as known, ever walked instinct warning of danger ahead. Without an experienced guide, one must as surely loose his way, as on the pathless "The Irish Washerwoman" and "Tishocean without a skilled pilot. For nearly three miles the guide conducts his followers over sharp blocks of black glistening lava. Sometimes the warmth is felt through the thick shoe, and the path is often intersected by cracks and fissures through which sulphurous gas issues. On all sides, Vulcan has dicolayed his impatience of restraint and contempt of the earth's crust piling up irregular heaps twisting it into massive coils, straightening it into cables, or rending it into caverns. Upon nearing the lake the chaos increases, and the sulphur fumes are almost stilling. The first sight of the lake is rather disappointing, for Pele, being flame dart through its surface; now, bails of fire from 50 to 150 feet shoot up; now, livid rivers of swift current form; and now, glowing fountains borst forth, playing, tossing, raging, as though the orgies. life spirits were holding the maddest of A SERIES OF SIXTEEN CHARTS BY J. R. DODGE.

> They Show the Result of the Statistical Work of the Agricultural Department. Portraits of Gens. Grant, Sherman and Sheridan to be Presented to the Military Academy-To Examine Ames as to His Sanrty.

> Washington, Sept. 16.-Mr. J. R. Dodge, statistician of the United States department or agriculture, has prepared a series of sixteen charts, preceded by a brief letter press description, and, bound as an album, of agricultural statistics. The basis of each is a small map of the United States. Most of these charts il-Justrate the result of the statistical work. of the department, though the urst and second show respectively the proportions by states, of the clerients of the total land surface and of the more restricted farm area, and the sexteenth illustrates similarly the tenure of farm; by proprietors, tenouts paying money rent and tenunts giving a share of produce in lieu of rent. In these the state differences are by proportions rather than by (agas or numbers,

> All the other charts carry the idea or local distribution, as of the relative area of certain principal cereals in the several states and territories, and dimerences in rate of yield of certain products and inaverage prices of farm unmeds. These differ nees are first indicated by placing the states in live groups, each having a certain range of differentation and giving to each group a grade of density in color and a distinct peculiarity of mechanneal drawing. But for closer comparison a scale is made, with the national average as zero, and the parcentage of early state above or below this average is indicated on the map in plain figures, with the plus or minus prefix, showing the relation of each state to the general average as well as to every other state average. On the margin is also piaced the tabulation upon which the graphic delineation is based,

In the first group in corn growing, comprising states having more than 100 acres in maize in every 1,000 of the superficial area, are tea states, vizi Towa, with 219 acres: Illinois, 217; Delay, de, 176; Indiana, 157, M. ssouri, 140; Termesnessee, 136; Kentucky, 123; Maryland, 117, Kausas, 115; Ohio, 110,

In the rate of yield of wheat the first group, with a ten year's average or 16.6 bushels or more per acre metades only the divisions of the rocky mount an and Pacific coast region, and a part of the New England states. In the second group are Michigan, New York, Ohio, Indiana, New Hampshire, Illinois, Mame and Arizona in order. The states producing the most are not those with the largest proportion of surface in wheat, or the largest yield per acre. Dakota has but 41 acres in every 1,000, and a yield of 13.6 bushels per acre.

An alogous facts are shown in regard to oats. The charts deal only with the three cereals maize, wheat and oats, these comprising as they do 97 per cent. of the total cereal product of the coun-

In producing the extraordinary differences in average value of farm animals the largest factor is breed or blood, while feed and care, and distance from market, are other elements of variation.

This publication which is a part of the work in graphic illustration for popularizing agricultural statistics, is presented, in the hope of aiding a clear appreciation of some of the leading facts of American agriculture.

Portraits for the Military Academy. Washington, Sept 16.—The portraits of Gens. Grant, Sherman and Sheridan. which were painted by direction of Mr. George W. Childs for the United States military academy, will be rormall transferred to that institution on Oct. 3. Gen. Horace Porter will represent Mr. Childs upon the occasion and will deliver an appropriate address in presenting the portraits. Col. John M. Wilson, superintendent of the academy, will receive them. The corps of cadets will parade and take part in the ceremomes, which will be held in Grant half during the afternoon. It is expected that the secretary of war, Gens, Schotield, Howard. Kelton and others prominent in millory and civil circles will be present and musical. My triend and I went at the presentation ceremonies. The portraits were to have been presented last June, but the presentation was postponed upon the request of the board of visitors to the academy. Cen. Lew Wallace, who was president, was selected to make the presentation speech, but that gentleman, on account of pressing engagements, was compelled to decline. Thereupon Mr. Criffs selected Gen. Horace Porter, whose association with Gen, Grant and whose personal knowledge of Sherman and Sheridan make the selection very proper and listing.

Corner Stone Laid.

Washington, Sept. 16,-The corner stone of the new St. Peter's church was laid Sunday with imposing ceremonies. Cardinal Gibbons officiated and delivered an address to a large audience. The parade which preceded the laying of the stone was one of the largest Catholic processions ever seen in this city.

One hundred and twenty members of the Sixteenth Connecticut infantry arrived at Geitysburg on a special excursion train Sunday. They will inspect the battlefield to-day and leave for Antietam. The party are from Hartsford, New Haven and New Britain.

I had even gone so far as to draft a bill embodying the provisious outlined above, with the intention or having it introduced in the legislature, but at the earnest solicitation of a few friends, who deemed it an unwise measure, I allowed the matter to drop, although I felt then and still feel that it would be a good thing for the state to have some such law in operation."—St. Louis Republic.

Lucky Guesses. A San Francisco newspaper offered $200 to the one who would correctly guess the number of types in a jar exhibited in the exposition there. Two menwere successful, naming the correct number, 34,200. How they came to hit on that number is interesting. One of them once guessed the number of shot in | told by physicians that she was incurable a jar about the same size as the one con- and could live only a short time; she taining the type. There were 95,000. He thought there were one-third as many type as shot, and so divided 95,000 by 3, and he said, "added a little to make it even." The other man saw a crowd around the jar, and felt in his pocket for a pencil with which to write his number. He couldn't find one, and moved on; but afterwards, feeling strongly impelled to make a guess, felt again for a pencil, and found an old lottery ticket, on which was the number 34,200. He borrowed a pencil, put down the number, and won $100.—Inland Printer

Ocean Parasites.

Everything is said to have its parasice, and the chole at the bottom of the sea is no exception. Cables have been taken up from a depth of a mile and a half with the hemp covering bally eaten away, and at a depth of over half a imlestrong currents of the ocean have rasped the armored wires on the rocky bottom. Experience has not yet determined the full lasting qualities of electric cables. Specimens have been taken up which show no signs of deterioration after having been in the water for more than thirty-five years. Water, and especially salt water, seems to be a preserver of insulating compounds.

The machine of the Democratic party named the delegates to the Carroliton convention, and the great body of voters had no voice in the proceedings. direct or indirect. But they are used to it.

They call it a bit of sentiment to place flags on the schools. Well, it is the sort of sentiment that holds nations together, destroys anarchy, all that sort of sentiment we can get.

Mysterious, indeed, are the ways of modern Democracy. Now the delegates to the senatorial convention of Wednesday were all named by the Democratic central committee, without an effort to get close to the rank and file. Yet members of this packed convention, packed if ever a convention was, had the effrontery to talk about guarding the sacred rights of the people!

The Shah of Persia summed up his observations as a traveler b. diclaring that in England the people said, "Time is money:" in France they seemed to say, "Time is pleasure." The Shah is about right. Of the Americans he would probably say that money is time. After all, in this respect the French are far in the lead. They enjoy themselves. Can the masses here say as much?

Before Tanner's resignation it was impossible for the Canton News-Democrat to criticise him with enough severity, now it is patriotically engaged in advising the G. A. R. to condemn the President for accepting the resignation. When the question simmers down, the whole country will unite in kindly consideration for the legless man's great and generous heart, and in approving his removal upon the discovery that in executive qualities he was lacking.

A law passed April 15 by the late legislature enables cities to demand protection at crossings, by the erection of safety gates. The city council in consulting with the C., L. & lars. W. and W. & L. E. railroads regard ing safety gates, should not assume the attitude of a bounty beggar; it should insist with dignity and firmness upon safety gates at Tremont. Main and Cherry streets, and men to watch them day and night. If the people of Ohio cannot compel the railroads to properly protect their lives it had better enter into voluntary bankruptcy.

Allen O. Myers seems to be the Democratic factorum this campaign. It was Allen O. Myers who made the key-note speech in Pike county, and not Mr. Campbell later on, and it is Allen O. Myers' speech and not Mr. Campbell's that is being circulated as Democratic Literature. was Allen O. Myers who ran the Dayton convention, and he is already set down as Campbell's private secretary in case of the latter's election. It is the same old gang now on top that came so near wrecking the state of Ohio when last entrusted with its control.

"E. E. Dresbach, Democratic candidate for representative, was in the city to-day. He laughed to scorn the puny attempt of the Massillon INDEPENDENT to cause the impression that Mr. Oberlin, of Massillon, and he had some angry words. He brands the entire article as a fabrication.

chosen by the next legislature. This puts into the hands of the people the first opportunity to rebuke the purchase of his seat five years ago. The election of a Democratic legislature would indicate a sentiment anything but condemnatory of the methods leading to the choice of Payne, concerning which ex-Senator Allen G. Thurman said: "The Democratic clock is put back four years, and corruption is given a new leasehold in our land. Syndicates purchase the people's agents, and honest men stand aghast" But Mr. Thurman clock was put back at least six years, for we find at the head of its affairs the very men who engineered the most gigantic fraud ever perpetrated upon the people of Obio.

If there is such a thing as a pleasant feature connected with a great strike, it is this:

"It is a remarkable fact that there has been no rioting in London by during the past six weeks, have paralyzed several important branches of business there. They have marched n gigantic processions through the streets: they have held meetings of prodigious size in the parks; they have listened to the speeches of fervid orators: they have been in a high state of excitement; multitudes of them have suffered from hunger and heard the cries of their needy families; yet there has been no violent mob and no trouble with rioters; the peace of the city has remained unbroken. As a matter of course, the troops and the police have been kept ready for action, but there has been no need of their doing service against the strikers during the most formidable and persistent strike that has ever been known in London '

CAMPBELL AND THE BREWERY TRUST-

It was charged weeks ago that cardidate Campbell had been instrumental in the purchase of numercus breweries for a British syndicate. This charge Mr. Campbell saw fit to deny in terms not so sweeping as to be called a denial, yet answering the same purpose These facts led the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette to investigate, and the result is the discovery that the auti-monopoly candidate was beyond all question one of those who most directly had to do with the consolidation of the American breweries by an English syndicate.

THE INDEPENDENT'S limited space forbids the use of all the evidence in the case, and it can only reproduce the points involved, and refer the more curious reader to the Commer cial Gazette of Tuesday for particu-

The testimony is all of the most cold and convincing character, being the unabbreviated affidavits in the case of Joseph B. Hughes, complainant, vs. Albert Carry et al., defendants, in the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

In John A. Clarke's statement he 1889, affiant, at the request of said Carry, attended a conference in the city of Washington, D. C., at which were present said complainant, Jas E. Campbell, said Carry and affiant. at some considerable length, to wit: about two hours, and it was frequently represented by both said Hughes and Campbell that the said property for an English syndi being purely of a speculative character on the part of said Hughes and Campbell, and by them so stated at said conference.

Again: "That when said Carry banded the said agreement to said Campbell, the latter took the former aside, and in a whispering conversation produced a paper writing which the mental operation of giving up his he asked said Carry to sign; wherein residence here, establishes his incl and whereby said Carry was to bind igibility. himself to pay to said Campbell, in the event of the brewery being sold to the English parties, the sum of

In other words, Mr. (ampbeil desired Mr. Carry to sell the brewery for $250,000, but to make the fidence in his personal integrity to The foregoing is from the papers read $350,000, the margin of $100,000 to go to Mr. Campbell

> But Mr. Carry answered: "No. to do that. It would look like I was Massillon last year, as he then supgetting all the money myself, when in fact I would be helping you to get more money than my brewery would be worth." Said complainant Hughes then remarked: "Why, Mr Carry, this shouldn't disturb your conscience at all."

Mr. Campbell's original terms Senator Payne's successor is to be were not agreed to, and at a later 25c.

conference another agreement was executed, "and said Carry then and there, at the request of said Campbell, signed a private paper writing wherein and whereby said Carry agreed to pay said Campbell the sum of $25,000 in the event of the said brewery property being sold to the English syndicate aforesaid."

Next comes Mr. Campbell's personal affidavit, in which he swears that: "Deponent has, since March 20, 1889, examined the statements of more than thirty breweries, in different parts of the country, with a view of negotiating sale of same, and is qualified, by his knowledge of the buying and selling of breweries, to made amistake. The Democratic state, and does state that a large proportion of the value in any brewery that is done

These extracts are from court records, and were filed in July, 1889 They come home with crushing force on top of Mr. Campbell's denial of having anything to do with the big brewery deals. Clearly he was not thinking of the governorship of Ohio while endeavoring to get $100,000 and promotes patriotism. We need the hundred thousand strikers who, for his personal services in selling an establishment worth $250,000.

> The way THE INDEPENDENT brought the Canton News-Democrat up with a sudden turn, when it impertinently accused Mr. Clement Russell of being a boodler, is fresh in the memory of many. The News-Democrat backed down.

However, without forecasting the future, it let fall a gem equal to the one declaring a lie to be an intellectual way of meeting a difficulty. Here

"It does not necessarily follow that to be a political boodler, a man must contribute money to secure a nomination, because delegates realizing that he has money in abunds ance, 'cheerfully' give him support. and look for their reward during the campsign,'

This, of course, makes Mr. Howells a full-fledged boodler, according to the definition of his own organ. THE INDEPENDENT, understand, does not so charge.

The Proceedings, Resolutions and Other Work of the Carroliton Convention Detailed, Special Disputch to The Independent. Carrollyon, O., Sept. 18. -The twenty-first Democratic senatorial convention, so far as numbers and enthusiasm were concerned, was a spiritless event. Hardly half of the regular delegates were present. The convention was called to order at the court house, with John E. Monnet as temporary chairman and J. V. Lawler secretary, and Monnot proved to his own satisfaction that the motto or the lare legislature was "Damn the People," and that unless the virtious candillates of Democracy were elected that would be the motto of the rest. Having thrashed the tyran's of Republicanism, committees on organization and resolutions were named, and the convention adjourned for disner.

At the afternoon session the temporary organization was continued. Nominations were called and a deep and solema silence ensued. The chairman wondered whether there were any candidates. Finally John McBride said that if Howells would have it by acclamation he could take it.

A. P. Mortland, a Carrollton lowver, was also named. The resolutions endorse the St. Louis and Payton platforms, Campbell and all other nominees, locaand state. They pledged efforts to eleca Democratic legislature to undo some of the unjust legislation of the last asembly.

Balloting being in order, Mr. Mostland withdrew and Mr. Howels was in minared by acclaimmation. Mr. Howells was introduced and promised to fairly and squarely represent the Demceratic principles if elected. He assolted the tariff and wept over the graves of Grover Cleveland, Tilden and other pa-

SAVED FROM DEATH BY DR. SALM. AN AWFUL CASE OF CATARRH.

In February last I began treatment with Dr. Salm, of the Germania Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Infirmary, of Co. lumbus for eatarrh and affection of thlungs. Before I went to him, I coule hardly obtain a night's rest, caused by coughing and distressing feelings in chest, and chokng sensation, I had a great deal of pain in the head, my complexion became sallow and I was greatly emaciated, always felt tired and had lost my energy. Now after five months treatment I am a different man, can do a good day's farm work. I have a good appetite, good color, my cough has almost entirely left me and never awakes me at night any more. In fact I am well satisfied with the result of treatment obtained from Dr. Salm.

Nine months ago I began treatment with Dr. M. Salm, of Columbus, for catarrh, ringing in the head, partial deafness, throat and chest trouble and general debility. I am now a new man, and with the exception of an occasional slight ringing in the ear, I am as hearty as any man. My catarrh has passed away, can hear very actively, have no more hawking and spitting, no more coughing or pain in the chest and head. I had been suffering for eight years, with all the miserable symptoms attending this disease, and now consider mygelf entirely cured.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

IN THE INTERESTS OF GARDENING AND FRUIT GROWING,

Hints in Ornamental Gardening-How to Make a Cheap but Effective Screen Wall, from Which Will Grow Plants and Trail-

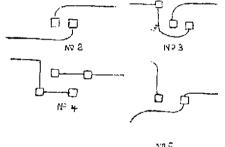

It is a mistake to think that extensive grounds and larg space are necessary for any attempts of what may be called ornamental gardening. There are various ways in which ar sightly objects may may be screened from view and the neces sary division tences turned into objects of beauty.

A FROWER COVERED WALL.

The simple, inexpensive screen wall shown in the car and tur har discribed by Country Contheman was built of brick. The wale was three bricks wide. Two rows of trick were built to the desired height, leaving the space of one brick between. The space thus left was filled with rich soil to within the width of one brick at the top; on this the conter row of bricks was laid with here and there a brick left out. At regular distances squares five bricks wide were built into the wall. These were filled with soil in the same way as the other part of the wall and left entirely uncovered at the top. In the spaces left in the center of the wall and in the squares were planted vines and different kinds of blooming plants. It was very little trouble to keep in order, shut off an unsightly back alley, and added much apparent space to a small garden.

A friend who wished to build a wall of similar design on a much larger space. and who found it necessary to have various openings through, enaplayed the designs shown in Figs. 2, 3, 4 and 5, the situation determining which one should be used. All of them had one point in common, an opening through the wall without spoiling its purpose as a screen.

DUSIGNS FOR BRICK WALL. In selecting vines and plants for this wall attention must be given to the amount of sun and shade they will receive. When the wall is in the shade many varieties of ferns can be used, the tall brakes for the squares and lower growing kinds for the wall between. Trailing plants are particularly effective and suitable for growing in or on these garden walls. The following list names only those that will grow easily and in almost any situation: German ivy, Kenilworth ivy, mountain fringe, Madeira vine and Virginia creeper. Where blooms are wanted petunias, geraniums and nasturtiums will always give satisfaction.

Influence of Stock on Graft.

O. B. Hadwen, in a discussion before the Massachusetts Horticultural society. said that we attribute certain effects to the influence of the stock on the graft, or vice versa, but we really know little of it. We can increase the size of small pears like the Seekel and Dana's Hovey by grafting them on vigorous stocks. It is well known to nurserymen that fruit trees of different varieties vary in the roots, so that some varieties can be identified by the roots, though the trees are grafted, and this difference is caused by the returning sap. He has seen Baldwin apples half or two-thirds covered with russet, which he attributes to the pollen of russet apples growing near. But this influence or that of the stock on the scion does not extend so far as to produce new varieties, for if it preponderated we should have lost the types of varieties which are well known to be unchanged after grafting for many years. There are so many conditions and laws affecting these influences, and all apparently different, that they will probably always be a subject for study, and we never can arrive at any positive conclusion.

Two Good Strauberries.

Mr. E. Winiams, secretary of the New Jersey Horticultural society, says:

The most promising of the new varieties I have yet tried is the Burneh. The berries are large, bright, smooth and handsome. It appears to be both vigorous and productive-two desirt'de features in a strawberry-and the quality is

Its foliage is handsome and, according to Garden and Forest, is less liable than that of the garden hybrids

PEACH CULTURE.

Important Points to Be Observed-Departures from Usual Methods.

To secure vigorous fruitful peach trees and fine fruit the following points must be attended to in peach culture: First-Keep the ground clean and mellow around the trees, and give it an occasional dressing of wood ashes Second - Keep the heads of the trees low: Barry says the trunks ought not to exceed three feet in height. Third-Attend regularly every spring to praning and shortening the shoots of the provious year's growth. This keeps the head round, full and well furnished with bearing word. Cut weak shoots back about on shalf and strong enes one-third, but see to it that you have a sufficient supply of fruit bads Sickly and superfluous shoots ought to be cut clean out.

The not torget that the fruit is produced on wood of last season's growin, and honce the accessity for keeping apagood. supply of vigorous annual shoots all over

Mr. Hale, the successful Connecticut peach grower, has made departures in his peach culture from the usual methols These, as described by Rural New Yorker, we both original and instructive. He spreads up in 1 is orehard 400 pounds. of mariate of petasli every year. He uses the intricte simply because it is the cheapest term of potash. This, as he believes, budges a time color in the fruit. Besides the petash, he uses 1,000 pointis of tipe raw bone per acre. This gives the phospheric and and all the nitrogen, which the trees seem to require. His trees are not troubled with the yellows, but are themry and sound. He leaves the peaches on the trees until they are ripe. Then careful selections are made in harvesting, and each basket is guaranteed to be filled with truit of the same quality. from the bottom to the top-

His varieties are the Mountain Rose. which ripens from Aug. 25 to Sept. 10. Oldmixon, risening from the 10th to the 20th of September; Sormp the World, ripening from the 15th to the 25th, ending with some Late Crawford, Ward's Late and Merris White. Go, you good peach growers, and to likewise.

Common Field Corn.

Common field corn, if rightly handled, says Hoard's Dairyman, will make more milk, ton for ton, than ordinary timothy hay. Yet farmers destroy nearly all its feeding value in three ways.

(1) They allow it to become too ripe before cutting and stacking. They think it will help the ears but the ear will develop from quite a green stalk. (2) They allow it to remain exposed to the weather until the life and goodness of it is beaten out of it. (3) A great many never cut it up, but turn the cattle in the field and | 32, 27 starve them into eating the dry frost bitten leaves and husks. For all this they pay a fearful price for waste. Many will say they cannot afford to hire help to cut up and save the corn fodder. Why cannot they as well afford to save a dollar's worth of corn fouder as a dollar's worth of hay? Every farmer expects to feed to his cows a certain amount of corn. Why not save the cost of husking and cut it into a silo at once, when the stalk and ear combined are in the highest degree of excellence for feeding?

Success in Small Pruit Culture.

The late E. P. Roe used to say that the secret of success in small fruit culture might be found in two words: "Stimulation and restriction." By stimulation he meant a thoroughly pulverized and enriched soil. This is especially essential to the strawberry, the foreign raspberry and all the currants. A rampant growing raspberry, like the Cuthbert or Turner, and our vigorous blackberries, do not require stimulation, but they do restriction. By restriction he meant the development of fruit rather than wood or vines. Set out a strawberry plant in very deep, rich, moist soil, and its tendency is to follow the great law of nature and propagate itself; but to the degree might be found in two words: "Stimulathat it makes plants it cannot make fruit. Cut off every runner, and enormous fruit buds are developed. The sap is dammed up as a miller restricts a stream, and the result is strawberra's that are double in size and quantity. This is equally true with taspberries. Current bushes crowded with wood bear little fruit

Musk Melons.

Many meless are no better than pumpkins, especially the early ones and those brought from the south. Melans should never be gathered till the stein has "sprang" -that is, parted from the fruit -more or bed. The pulme stend be educated to know the tiste of mesons in a state of pertection. A safe plan for obtaining own root Position No. 138-BY James Labable, roses is to take plants that have made strong growth one suson in the ground, lift there in untaum, pot into four inchpots, during the winter keep them in a cold frame tree from frost, and start them on in March in a little heat. These make fine stock for planting in the ground in Jane, and on until August; this is perhaps the most attishedory way to procure own root points with success.

Hints from Well Known Hortreulturists. Cherries oudded on Mahaleo stock are failing, largely on account of the borer at the root. Purchasers should procure trees worked on the Mazzard, says Joseph Mechan.

One of our most desirable bog plants, according to F. H. Horselord, is the side saddle flower or pitcher plant, Sarracenia purpurea.

Says A. P. Reed: "Of all the large number of varieties of strawberry tested I recommend the Wilson for the home 28. growers who cannot afford to give it 82.27 much attention. Three Firemen Taken Out Dead-Others Still Under the Debris.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 16.—The fivestory building corner of Seventh and Main streets, occupied by Bamburger, Bloom & Co., the largest whole ale dry goods house in the city, is on fire. The entire city fire department is endeavoring to prevent the spread of the flames.

The guests have left the Louisville hotel which nearly adjoins the burning building on Main street, many or them escaping by means of the fire escapes and ladders on the Sixth street wing, the intense heat making exit from the Main street front impossible. It is estimated that the loss to the dry goods sinu alone will reach $1,090, on,

BY HIS BROTHER'S KNIFE.

A DISPUTE OVER A GAME OF CARDS LEADS TO A BRUTAL HOMICIDE.

Giovanna Fronceschiello Stabs His Brother in the Heart, Abdomen and Back Which Causes Justant Death - The Murderer Escapes but is Captured After Nearly a Day's Chase.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 16.-Another bloodcurdling murder is added to the long list occurring in this city during the past year. The last one happened on Saturday evening and is revolting in the extreme. Michele Franceschiello arrived in this city from Italy about five months ago to join his brother. Giovanni, who had been here about two years. The two brothers with other Italians sleep in the house of Pietro Carsaro, at the East End. They received their pay on Saturday, and a party of them gathered at Carsaro's house and spent the evening drinking beer, playing cards and singing songs. They were all more or less under the influence of liquor and finally commenced playing cards for $1. a game. Giovanni, the men who were present say, was rather too badly intoxicated to play well, and he lost several dollars, which his brother won. Giovanni grew very angry, and jumping from his stool, pulled from an inside pocket a broad-bladed dirk knile of exceeding keenness. Before anyone could interfere be stabbed his brother, Michele, in the heart, cutting the heart almost in twain. As Michele sprang to his feet a second vicious cut went deep and long through his abdomen, and as the victim fell to the floor, Giovanni stabbed him twice in the back. The Murderer's Flight.

The Italian Cain waved his knife at the four other Italians who were in the room and retreated down the stairway. Carsaro run tor a revolver and followed Franceschiello into the yard. The murderer can at the landlord with his knife uplifted, and the valiant Carsaro retreated to the house. Giovanni then darted away into the darkness. He was without but, coat or shoen but his bloody knife prevented any of the frightened Italians from following him.

A physician was called, but he was not needed. The corpse was a terrible sight. It was covered with blood, which had run about in a great pool on the naked floor. The body was left there during the night, and a police guard was put on the house. The revolver which Carsaro had been afraid to use was taken from bina.

Chasing the Murderer.

A large number of Italians, who live near the place where the tragedy occurred, joined in the liunt. By midnight there must have been over 160 men, police officers and others, searching the gardens, groves and ravines when hali mile every way from Archillo street. The containy there is rough and, in places, is heavily timbered. It is on the very edge of the populated district, and the scarch for the murderer was a difficult one. The detectives tramped through streams, fell into holes and climbed over fences. The search was kept up all night. Capt. Mercer secured a horse and after riding all day Sunday came across has man in a corn field about five miles from the scene of the murder. As soon as troop tain saw the fedow he ordered him to hault, but he paid no attention to the command and immediately started on a run. The captain then fired at the fugitive, but not until a third and tourth shot had been fired did the murderer stop, and then throwing up both bands he quietly submitted to arrest, when he was brought beet; to the city and folgest in the Nineteerth ward station. A hear captured he was still coatless, showless and bareheaded, having been tunnal to secure anything in his wanderings.

A Collection Clerk Attempts Suicide. Cairo, His., Sept. 16.—The accounts of T. W. R. Willans, collection clerk in the joint offices of the Adams, Southern and American Express companies here, were checked up Friday and an embezzlement of 8900 was discovered. A warram for his arrest, was issued Saturday evening, but was not served, as the young man was too sick to be removed or to escape. An attempt was made by several societies to raise money to make up the shortage and half the amount was raised, with which it was hoped a temorary compromise might be effected, the balance to be raised later. This scheme failed. Willans made an attempt at suicide by taking landanum.

Bliss, of Morton, Bliss & Co., New York; J. W. Sterling, of New York; Wm. Minot, Jr., of Boston; H. D. Minot, of St. Paul, and J. J. Hill, of St. Paul. W. H. Forbes, of Boston, declined re-election, and to till his place and the vacancy left by Mr. Manyel's departure to the Santa Fe road, Messrs. Bliss and Sterlin were elected. No meeting of the directors has yet been held.

MODERN SPIRITUALISM.

It Originated in the United States Fortyone Years Ago-Its Progress.

[Special Correspondence.] NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Spiritualism, as it is commonly called, which has found such hosts of believers throughout civilization, is generally supposed to have originated in the United States about forty-one years ago. It is rare that any doctrine or philosophy has gained so many and so devoted adherents in so short a time. Spiritualism has made converts in all conditions of society and in every part of the world. But, strictly speaking, the philosophy is, as its advocates claim, very old, older than history. What is recent about it is the spirit rapping phenomena, which began in 1548 in the family of John D. Fox, at the little village of Hydesville, Wayne county, N. Y.

Fox and his wife and their daughters Kate and Margaret, 9 and 12 years of age, were startled by strange rappings in different parts of their house, particularly at night. In a short time these rappings, though still unaccountable, were made intelligible. They assumed to come from spirits; they told the age of the Fox children; they answered questions negatively by one rap, affirmatively by two. They disclosed, it is said, that the remains of a murdered man were buried in the cellar of the Fox residence, and, search being made, a skeleton was found in the identical spot indicated. The name of the victim was rapped out, and inquiry revealed that, five years before, such a person had visited the house, and never been seen or heard of afterward.

The Fox family went to Rochester, where the raps occurred at the command of Kate and Margaret only, and clairvoyance, the moving of chairs, tables and other heavy pieces of furniture, with other phenomena, were manifested without visible agency. These drew attention, and forty years ago in the autumn of 1849 the Fox sisters appeared in a public hall; the phenomena were submitted to many tests, but could be traced to no human source. Public curiosity and interest were gradually aroused, and when the girls gave an exhibition of their peculiar powers the year following, in New York, the newspapers discussed the subject, and it soon became of national significance. Endless controversies were started; mediums, through whom the phenomena were presented, sprang up all over the land, and Spiritualism grew to be the burning question of the hour. Since then the new philosophy has been debated by the ablest minds in every quarter of civilization, and it has unsettled to an extraordinary degree the old beliefs, rationalistic as well as orthodox, of the whole world.

Even before the spirit rappings in the Fox family the societies of Shakers at New Lebanon, Watervliet, N. Y., and elsewhere had at the same time startling psychical experiences, wherein certain members of the fraternity would lose their proper consciousness, and the departed spirits, as was maintained, of persons of various nationalities would occuby their bodies and speak through them. Almost simultaneously Andrew Jackson Davis, a shoemaker's apprentice at Poughkeepsie, developed through mesmerism wonderful clairvoyant abilities. Albeit unconcated, he was qualified, by report, to speak freely and eloquently on medical, spiritual and scientific top-

While in the mesmeric state he declared he had intercourse with invisible beings, and was instructed as to his place and duties as a teacher of the new teners. He likewise dictated, under the same conditions, hundreds and hundreds of pages on a diversity of supramundane themes, an odd compound of eloquence, fustian and absurdity. These were afterwards published with the title, "The Principles of Nature; Her Divine Revelations and a Voice to Mankind," The work had an immense sale and met with the most contradictory criticism. Davis thereafter wrote, in his normal mind, many volumes of a similar character (they all denied the supernatural authority of the Scriptures), the "Great Harmonia" and his autobiography attracting the most notice.

Of the innumerable mediums that have appeared here and abroad within the last forty years, none has won such a reputation as Home (Daniel Douglas), a nafive of Scotland, who came to America when only 9 with an adopted aunt. Spirits are repeated to have haunted him from his earliest consciousness, and he remembered so ing at 13 a companion of his boyhood some years dead. At 17 he became a regular medium, and continued to be such until his death, which occurred recently. He lived in New York state and in New England up to 1855he was then 20-doing, beside the things that general mediums do, many novel-

During the last thirty years of his life he made Europe his home. In Paris, Rome, Berlin, Vienna and St. Petersburg he created a great stir. He was presented to the emperor of the French, the ezar and the paper and received many superbigiits from crowned heads and the notaty. The most remarkable experiences and adventures were his in the Old World capacits, reprincing one of the strange eventa of Cagliostro, St. Germain and Ech le Perumont in the last century, Mediums generally have enjoyed a local reputation, flourished for a while, and then disappeared from the public view.

AFFAIRS IN EUROPE

Consul General Raine Does Not Think War Imminent-France and Germany

Should be Friends. BALTIMORE, Sept. 15.—Fred. Raine, lately consul general at Berlin, has arrived from fairope. Speaking of anars in Europe Mr. Raine said that he does not think a war imminent, but I blickers that the smallest spark may of any moment cause a disastrous conflagration. The conservatives of France and Germany do not desire war, he says, but Russia's ambition and pansalavistic agitation may lead to it any moment. Mr. Raine entertains the opinion that France and Germany should be friends, instead of enemies, as he considers gassia and the semi-barbarian elements under the scepter of the ezar the dangerous antagonists of both. With the Russians war means the ascendancy of autocratic ideas, the death knell of Republicanism and constitutional government. The thinking men of France are not blind to the objects of Russia and show but little inclination to encourage the cry of revenge against Germany, rather believing that sooner or later something may turn up to establish an entente cordial between Germany and France.

Mr. Raine fears that the immense war prearations of all Europe and the tremendous cost of armament and consequent taxation may lead to exhaustion and an appeal to arms, precipitating war against the wishes of all true friends of progress and civilization.

A GIGANTIC SYNDICATE

Being Formed to Protect Themselves

Against the English Beer Syndicate. MILWAUKEE, Sept. 16.—The American brewers have projected a gigantic syndicate or pool to protect themselves against the encroachments of the English beer syndicate. Mr. Charles Merkel, of New York, vice president of the Kraus-Merkel Malting company, is now in this city attending a meeting of the directors of that organization. Mr. Merkel's business brings him into intimate relations with the brewers. In an interview he said: "There will be formed a gigantic stock company that will buy up or control all the more important breweries of the county. Its capital stock will be $100,000,000. The brewers of St. Louis have already organized to this end and are ready to join the combine. The important browing centers, New York, Milwaukee, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Chicago, New Orleans and Kansas City, will be visited and brought into the scheme.

Capt. Frederick Pabst, president of the Pubst Brewing company; August Uihleim, of the Schlitz company; Valentine Blatz, and other brewers of this city have expressed themselves in favor of the projected combine.

Light Between Whites and Blacks, Cuttaco, Ill., Sept. 16.-A Herald special from Lawrenceville, III., says This town was the scene of a desperate fight between whites and blacke last night. County Judge Barns arrested a negro on the street for running amuck with a knite. The negroes attempted to rescue the prisoner and the whites went to Barns' assistance. There was a hard fight, but the writes won, and landed four regrees in jail. The negroes rallied again, broke in the jail and rescue I the prisoners. The whites organized and in the fight that followed Judge Barns was shot, but not tatally, and two negroes were killed. About a dozen were wounded in both sides. The ring leader was captured and put in juit. A posse, armed with Winchesters, surrounded the jail last night and the negroes ded pame stricken from the town.

Bysterious Death.

Yorx, Sept. 16.—Fréderick Dety, a., 18 years, was brought to the You hospital yesterday morning in an unconscious condition and died before he could be taken into the hospital. Three young men who were with him stated that Doty had injured his head by falling on a curb stone. All of the young men had been drinking and there some to be some mystery conrected with the case. An autopsy showed that Doty's death was caused by a fall or a blow. His companiers were taken in charge by the police, but afterwards released. The deceased was a son of John F. Doty, dealer in rubber goods at No. 68 Problems, who is now at Chicago at the Tremont house.

Steamers Delayed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—On account of the heavy tog that hung over the lower buy saturday none of the trans- clautic steamships put to sea. The Etruria, the LaCampagne and the Furnessia lay over night at anchor in Gravesend bay and went to sea early Sunnay morning. The Edam from Rotte, dain and the Slavonia from Hamburg worked their way through the fog-safely and reached their docks about 19 o'clock Sunday morning. The Aurania from Liverpool and LaBourgegre from Havre did not reach their docks unto Sunday evening.

-----St. Boseph's Expedience on Pays.

St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 12,-The main building of the New Lra exposition is on fire; the place is too far away for the fire department to reach. At 12 o'clock the fire is still raging, with a probability of going on several hours. The probable loss will be from $55,000 to $55,000. There were about 5,000 people on the grounds when the fire started and no one has any idea how the fire originated.

The main building is a total loss. All the exhibits and booths are destroyed. The line steel car which is on exhibition was also destroyed. The total loss is estimated at $20,000, associan $40,000.
